

When Lady Tomo awakened long ago without clear sense of who she was, Naka-Kon welcomed her. At first, the phoenix took the people's kindness for granted, especially those who had become her followers.

It wasn't until after she experienced defeat at the blade of Lord Byakko that Tomo learned her supporters were, in fact, her friends. With their help, she was reborn from the ashes, ready to grow into a kami worthy of leading Naka-Kon.

Though her main desire was to repay her friends for the happiness they had given her, Tomo's trials were far from over.

The next year, a messenger for the Fox kami Inari, interrupted the "little bird" and her followers as they were preparing for Naka-Kon, testing and toying with the young kami.

The year after, Inari himself appeared, luring Tomo and her friends into a realm of reflection, where they would face their greatest challenges yet: themselves

Through dangers and hardships untold, Tomo and her allies fought their way to victory.

Or so she thought.

Tomo had faced her insecurities, emerging from the reflection world with a blessed stone to signify her triumph, only to find herself alone.

The others would not wake, no matter how long she waited. Days turned into weeks, weeks turned into months. But her friends remained asleep.

As time took them, her friends began to change before her eyes.

Hansuke's skin shifted slowly to a deep red. Aiko's brilliant hair darkened to an unearthly blue. They, and the others, began to grow ears and tails like animals, along with jagged teeth and malevolent faces.

As Tomo realized how powerless she was to stop the transformations, she also began to understand what had happened. In the reflection world, she had overcome her inner demons. Her friends had not. They had lost their fights the demons -- the same demons that were now manifesting in their bodies.

When the transformations were complete, Tomo could no longer recognize her friends. They were yokai now: a kappa, an oni, a kitsune, a snow maiden, and other creatures.

At long last, Tomo's Friends awoke. And they attacked.

Tomo stood against them, alone. But looking into their eyes, she knew her friends still lay beneath the surface, captives of the vicious yokai.

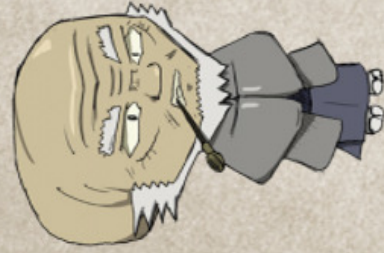

Unable to fight back, Lady Tomo called out to Naka-Kon's attendees to help save her friends.

Will you answer the call?

Naka-kon Yokai-Dex

01 Nurarihyon

HT 165cm
WT 86kg

Considered the leader of the yokai. Invites himself to busy parties and eats all the cheese. Emits such a powerful aura of leadership that even the home owners will defer to him.

02 Kitsune

HT 170cm
WT 73kg

Shape-shifting fox trickster that loves to cause mischief and confuse humans. Often associated with Inari, but not always.

03 Yuki-Onna

HT 160cm
WT 64kg

A snowy beauty who comes from the mountains. She can send you off with a blessing if you are kind to her, or freeze you with a word. Not to be confused with Elsa.

04 Ao-Andon

HT 155cm
WT 66kg

The spirit of the blue lantern. She comes out anytime scary stories are told, but no one knows what happens next.

05 Namsage

HT 173cm
WT 82kg

Seen during the First Full moon of the year, this fierce demon goes looking for naughty children. He is sent to scare bad or lazy kids into being good.

06 Kappa

HT 175cm
WT 91kg

River goblins that like sumo, cucumbers, and human innards. They are also very polite and will bow as low as you do. They are unstoppable in the water.

07 Oni

HT 183cm
WT 88kg

Large and scary with red, blue, or green skin. They wear the hides of great beasts and have horns growing out of their heads. Their greatest weakness is soy-beans.
